The finest of Tasmanian, interstate and international artisans and accomplished craftspeople showcase their skills at more than 200 stands - from silver and gold jewellery and fine art paintings to textiles, ceramics, woodcrafts and leatherwork. Every year, there is something new.

The Tasmanian Craft Fair, held annually over four days including the first Monday in November, is the largest working craft fair in the Southern Hemisphere.

It's held in picturesque Deloraine, classified by the National Trust as a town of historical significance.

The 14 venues are crammed with tempting displays, and the free and frequent bus service between venues helps you see it all in comfort.
